Baldosa Daisy

The image shows a close-up of several square tiles laid out in a grid. Each tile is a reddish-brown color and features a raised, embossed pattern of a daisy flower. The daisy has a central circle and several rounded petals. The tiles are separated by dark, recessed lines. The overall texture appears slightly rough and matte.

Baldosa Mushroom

The image shows a close-up of several interlocking roof tiles. Each tile has a semi-circular, mushroom-like shape with a series of parallel ridges running across its surface. The tiles are arranged in a staggered pattern, with the ridges of one tile fitting into the grooves of the adjacent tile. The color is a warm, earthy brown.

A photograph of a building's exterior corner. The wall is covered in a multi-colored stone veneer. A window with a white frame is on the left. Above the window, the address 'A 45' is mounted. To the right is a black door with a red ribbon bow and a red 'novogar' logo. A concrete walkway leads to the door. A dark downspout is on the left side of the stone wall.
